

Purpose of study:

Purpose of study A high-quality history education will help pupils gain a coherent knowledge and understanding of Britain's past and that of the wider world. It should inspire pupils' curiosity to know more about the past. Teaching should equip pupils to ask perceptive questions, think critically, weigh evidence, sift arguments, and develop perspective and judgement. History helps pupils to understand the complexity of people's lives, the process of change, the diversity of societies and relationships between different groups, as well as their own identity and the challenges of their time.

Key Stage two

Pupils should continue to develop a chronologically secure knowledge and understanding of British, local and world history, establishing clear narratives within and across the periods they study. They should note connections, contrasts and trends over time and develop the appropriate use of historical terms. They should regularly address and sometimes devise historically valid questions about change, cause, similarity and difference, and significance. They should construct informed responses that involve thoughtful selection and organisation of relevant historical information. They should understand how our knowledge of the past is constructed from a range of sources.

Pupils should be taught about:

- changes in Britain from the Stone Age to the Iron Age
- the Roman Empire and its impact on Britain
- Britain's settlement by Anglo-Saxons and Scots
- a local history study
- a study of an aspect or theme in British history that extends pupils' chronological
- knowledge beyond 1066
- the achievements of the earliest civilizations - an overview of where and when the first
- civilizations appeared and a depth study of one of the following:
Ancient Sumer; The
- Indus Valley; Ancient Egypt; The Shang Dynasty of Ancient China
- Ancient Greece - a study of Greek life and achievements and their influence on the western world a non-European society that provides contrasts with British history - one study chosen from: early Islamic civilization, including a study of Baghdad c. AD 900; Mayan civilization c. AD 900; Benin (West Africa) c. AD 900-1300

At Eversley Primary School we promote positive attitudes and enthusiasm for History by firing pupil's curiosity about the past in Britain and the wider world.

We ensure children understand how the past influences the present and what past societies were like.

Our aim is for all children to leave Eversley Primary School with a range of skills and abilities, using historical terms to explain about the past and making comparisons to present day.

Key questions:

What is History?

Why is it important that we study History?

How does the past influence the present?

What can we learn from mistakes made in the past?

Key vocabulary:

Ancient Egypt, Pharaoh, Tutankhamun, Artefacts, Nile, Desert, Pyramids, Sphinx, Mummy, Sarcophagus, Canopic Jars, Hieroglyphics

Cultural Capital:

Ancient Egyptian day where we will all dress up and get treated/ act like people from this era for the day. Children will complete a variety of activities to consolidate their learning of the topic allowing them to feel like they lived in this time.

Weekly spotlight time activity:

- Revisiting topics from year 2 to reinforce past learning
- Choosing people from previously studied historical periods and thinking about who they would like to be and why?
- Looking at pictures and deciding what in the picture are historical anachronisms
- Thinking about what questions they would ask a child from a different historical period?

Home learning/ Whole school project

The children will be asked to research an aspect of their local area which ties in with the topic that they are studying in history.
